“Joan and I shared something very special. We are both mothers of special needs children. Every time we saw each other, our conversation immediately went to "our sons". Joan was heart broken to have Todd go to the nursing home but he could not stay away from pneumonia any other way. She adapted well. And, she was really not able to care for him at home. I loved Joan Day and her husband Harold and daughter, Tara and son Todd. We lived in the same neighborhood beginning in 1969 and we moved further out. But 3 years ago, we came back to the neighborhood. I neglected not visiting her but I always was afraid I would catch her on a bad day. God needed Joan for a special angel and she is no longer suffering. And, Joan did a lot of suffering from pain. And, she was always concerned about Todd. I think we loved our boys so much and when she could no longer care for him, it was hard for her. I love you Joan Day and I am happy that Todd did not have to see you suffer. And, Tara Day Blanchard, I will be your Mom now. You have always been so close in my heart so I suppose I have gained a daughter.
