““Miss Millie” was what we always called her at school. She was so helpful, sweet, nice, and hundreds of other adjectives I could type here. I still treasure her recipe book she gave me a long time ago. I was worried about fixing a snack for a party and the next day she gave me a recipe book. That’s the kind of person she was, a person who always thought of others and could make you laugh with one of her many stories. She seemed to love everyone, especially her family. Her loving spirit and kindness is what I remember about her. The gentleman who wrote that the world could use more people like her, is absolutely correct. It was an honor to have known her. I love you Miss Millie! I’m truly sorry you are gone.”

“Going way back, you were a year ahead of me all the way through school. Since Curundu was our hometown we would run into each other from time to time. You were always nice. And from what others say you were nice to everyone. A lady. I think the world would be a little more like heaven, if there were more people like you. It was a pleasure to know you. R.I.P.”

“ My first Christmas without you and it is painful...just as it was with Pop, Matt, and Mom. This is a special time of year that allows time to reflect on our life that we had the Great Fortune to spend together as Sister and Brother. I'll always love you.

I love you darling...your brother, Reuben
