“ David was the only AT&T employee that was behind me to get out of his way instead of me getting behind them to get them out of my way. He and I met while widening US 27 north of Rome. I'll never forget the day that David called my office to inform me that our clearing contractor had just burned down the fiber optic cable that he had worked so hard to install. That was not a fun day for David, but whenever we crossed paths after that, we always had a good laugh. AT&T has never had another one like him, and they never will. You don't replace a David Law.
